

Oscillatory flow over a circular cylinder close to a plane boundary

M.F. Wybrow

School of Mathematics, University of East Anglia Norwich, NR4 7TJUKGBR

B. Yan

School of Mathematics, University of East Anglia Norwich, NR4 7TJUKGBR

N. Riley

School of Mathematics, University of East Anglia Norwich, NR4 7TJUKGBR

Received 08-DEC-95

in revised form 05-MAR-96

We consider by analytical, computational and experimental means the steady streaming that is induced when a circular cylinder is placed close to a plane boundary in an oscillatory flow. The Strouhal number, and streaming Reynolds number, are both large. The flows predicted, and observed, are shown to lead to an unexpected and indirect mechanism for scouring on the boundary immediately beneath the cylinder.

Copyright (c) 1998 Elsevier Science B.V. All rights reserved.